ACADEMIC CUSTOMS AND DRESS

The origins of many customs of the academic world are to be traced to the Middle Ages, particularly the eleventh and twelfth centuries when the first European universities – Bologna, Paris, and Oxford – were founded.

In their original organization, the universities were like medieval corporations or guilds. In fact the word “universitas” originally referred to any kind of corporation. The students at the universities were equated to guild apprentices, and so the completion of the apprenticeship was celebrated by a “commencement” marking the beginning of their careers.

In the twelfth century, everyone wore gowns. The social and economic status of an individual was shown by the extra features, such as fur trimming, on the gowns. Cloaks with hoods were worn over gowns for protection in bad weather. Degrees began to be awarded in the thirteenth century, and different styles of gowns and different colors came to represent the various degrees and disciplines.

Over the centuries the styles of dress changed, and by the seventeenth century, the wearing of gowns by men had virtually ceased. But the universities, particularly those in Britain, continued to be conservative and strict in the manner of academic customs and dress. At Oxford, for instance, candidates for master’s degrees had to swear that they owned a gown and would always wear it at the proper times.

The first American universities were founded on English models. However, the wearing of academic dress was not universal and ceased during the Civil War. The custom was revived in the late nineteenth century, and in 1895 an academic custom code was adopted which, with modifications, is still used.

Most American universities have the standard black gown with the hood serving to distinguish the individual institution. Some American and European universities have adopted or preserved more distinctive gowns. There are three styles of gowns, distinguished mainly by the sleeves; the bachelor’s gown, with long, pointed sleeves; the master’s, with a squared sleeve, cut so the forearm is free; the doctor’s, with bell-shaped sleeves with three velvet bands.

The hood is the really distinguishing feature of modern gowns, indicating the degree (the width of the edging band), the discipline (the color of the band) and the college or university (the colors of the lining). Today’s graduates have hoods edged in white (B.A., M.A.L.S.), gold (B.S., B.L.S.), or light blue (M.S.). Many faculty members will have blue edging indicating the Ph.D. degree. The faculty will be wearing hoods representing many distinguished institutions of higher education, e.g., orange and maroon for Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, maroon and white for the University of Chicago, red and black for Rutgers University, and navy blue and orange for the University of Virginia.

FACULTY EMERITUS

Faculty members who have served Mary Washington College for at least 15 years and who have attained the rank of professor or associate professor are eligible upon retirement to be considered for emeritus status. This honor, by action of the Board of Visitors, is bestowed this year upon five distinguished members of the faculty.

Otho C. Campbell

Associate Professor of History

A native of Richmond, Otho C. Campbell earned his B.A. degree from the University of Richmond, his M.A. degree from American University and his Ph.D. from the University of Virginia, all in the field of history. He served in the United States Army and was honorably discharged before entering college.

Prior to joining Mary Washington College in 1968, Dr. Campbell taught at Virginia Commonwealth University, Randolph-Macon College and Charles County (Maryland) Community College. He also taught American history and social studies in high school before beginning his career in higher education. His areas of expertise include United States diplomatic history, history of Virginia, Civil War and Reconstruction, history of Ancient Greece and 19th-century America. He also has a special interest in President Franklin D. Roosevelt and other 20th-century presidents. He is currently writing a biography of Civil War-era Virginia governor Henry Wise.

Philip Layton Hall

Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculty

Philip Layton Hall earned his A.B. in chemistry from The College of Wooster (Ohio), and his S.M. and Ph.D. in chemistry from the University of Chicago. In 1968, he began his teaching career at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University as an assistant professor, and later associate professor, of chemistry. Then, in 1979, he was appointed assistant provost at Virginia Tech, and was promoted to associate provost five years later. He joined the Mary Washington College administration in 1985 to become Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculty. Dr. Hall is the co-author of the book, The Study of Enzyme Mechanisms, and the book chapter, "Lignin Biodegradation: Microbiology, Chemistry and Potential Applications, Vol. II," and has published numerous articles in prestigious refereed journals. He also has made presentations about his scientific research throughout the United States, as well as in Canada and Japan.

In his 19 years of service to Mary Washington College, Dr. Hall has been involved in many of the institution's milestones. He was instrumental in developing the graduate and professional studies program and oversaw its move to the James Monroe Center campus in Stafford County. He also has actively recognized and supported excellence in teaching at the college through such programs as the Jepson Fellows, and he has worked to increase support for faculty development and undergraduate research. Dr. Hall also is one of the founders of the James Farmer Visiting Professorship program, which brings human rights scholars to the campus each year. In addition, he has worked with faculty members to improve the college's General Education Program, resulting in a major revision of the requirements for B.A. and B.S. students. He is a member of the American Chemical Society, Sigma Xi, the Association of American Colleges and Universities, and the American Association of Higher Education. He also is a founding member of the Council of Public Liberal Arts Colleges, for which he served as president in 1996-97.

Sammy R. Merrill Distinguished Professor of German

Sammy Ray Merrill earned his B.A. in religion from Wake Forest University, his M.A. in German from Duke University and his Ph.D. in German literature from Cornell University. A member of the Foreign Language Association of Virginia and the American Association of Teachers of German, Dr. Merrill is an expert on German language, literature and culture. He has participated in five seminars on topics related to the German Democratic Republic and has traveled widely in eastern Germany.

Dr. Merrill began his teaching career as a teaching assistant, and later assistant professor, at Cornell University. Since beginning his teaching career at Mary Washington College in 1973, he has served on numerous departmental and college-wide committees, often as chair. He has also been chair of the Department of Modern Foreign Languages four times and has dedicated much time to the Mary Washington College Honor System, serving as its faculty advisor. Dr. Merrill was recognized for his exceptional teaching ten years ago when he received the Grellet C. Simpson Award, the college's most prestigious award for exemplary teaching. In 2003 he was named the college's first recipient of the "J. Christopher Bill Outstanding Faculty Service Award," emblematic of the extraordinary breadth and quality of his contributions to the welfare of the institution and of the high esteem in which he is held by the college community.

John H. Reynolds
Professor of Computer Science

John H. Reynolds earned his B.S. degree in mathematics from Southeastern Oklahoma State and his M.S. in computer science from the State University of New York in Stony Brook. He served six years (four years of active duty) as an Aviation Electrician's Mate in the U.S. Navy. He worked for 17 years as a mathematician and computer scientist for the Naval Surface Warfare Center Dahlgren Division where he developed computer simulations in the area of geo-ballistics.

In 1981, Professor Reynolds was loaned to Mary Washington College to aid in the development and teaching of courses for the then one-year-old computer science department. In 1983 he became a full-time faculty member and, in addition to teaching responsibilities, has served as the system administrator of the computer science network from the outset. He has also served as the department chair. He has expertise in parallel processing, numerical analysis and computer operating systems. His research has been published in many journals and proceedings and includes provocative titles such as Linda Arouses a Sleeping Barber, published in 2002. In addition, he has written eight government publications on computer program development and software engineering.

Richard H. Warner
Professor of History

Having earned a B.A. in history from Dartmouth College, Richard H. Warner completed studies for his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in history from New York University. With a special interest in Russian history, he subsequently completed foreign language studies at Columbia University, Indiana University and at Unterwiessenbach, Austria. He participated in USSR-USA Cultural Exchanges in 1966-67 and in 1992. He has received numerous fellowships for research including work at the Russian Research Center at Harvard University; the National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Seminar; and the Slavic and East European Center at Ohio State University.

Prior to joining the faculty at Mary Washington College in 1968, Dr. Warner taught in the U.S. Armed Forces Institute in Schweinfurt, Germany; the Franklin School in New York City; and at New York University. At Mary Washington, his teaching responsibilities have covered a wide range of topics within the areas of early modern and modern Europe. His courses on the history of Russia and France, the French and Russian Revolutions, and European Cultural and Intellectual history, among others, anchored the department's European offerings for many years. Dr. Warner's research in the last decade has focused on maritime history and he has been a frequent presenter at American and international maritime history conferences.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

GOVERNOR MARK R. WARNER

The first in his family to graduate from college, Governor Mark R. Warner holds a bachelor degree from George Washington University and a law degree from Harvard University. In the 1980s, he was a key figure in the telecommunications revolution. He is a founding partner of Columbia Capital Corporation, a venture capital fund that started more than 70 telecommunications and information technology companies. As a wireless communications pioneer, Governor Warner was a co-founder of Nextel Communications.

In the 1990s, he helped found the Virginia Health Care Foundation, which has provided health care to nearly a half-million underserved Virginians in rural and urban areas. He also started TechRiders, an innovative program that teaches basic computer skills in schools and homes to those who are not exposed to them. This program has been hosted in more than 480 houses of worship and a dozen public libraries across Virginia, reaching more than 16,000 participants. In 1997, he developed the Virginia High-Tech Partnership, which helps students at Virginia's five historically black colleges and universities pursue technology careers through a summer internship and job placement program.

Governor Warner began his political career in 1993 as chairman of the Democratic Party of Virginia and was inaugurated into office in January 2002. He holds numerous leadership positions in national organizations. He is chairman of the Southern Governors' Association, recruitment chairman of the Democratic Governors' Association, vice chairman of the National Governors Association, and states' co-chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission. He also serves as chairman of the Education Commission of the States, a national nonpartisan policy organization.

Highlights of his governorship listed on his resume include launching comprehensive state government reforms and implementing innovative, low-cost programs to increase student achievement and accountability in public schools through his "Education for a Lifetime" initiative. He also has made Virginia a leader in information technology through the creation of the Virginia Information Technology Agency, which is a consolidation of IT services that had been spread among 93 agencies.

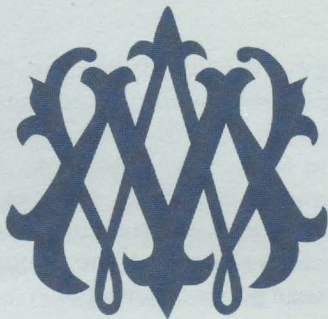

Governor Warner is married to Lisa Collis and the couple has three daughters – Madison, Gillian and Eliza. In addition to the Governor's Mansion in Richmond, they have a residence in Alexandria and a vineyard in Dogue.

THE EAGLE PIPE BAND

Performing at today's commencement ceremony is the Eagle Pipe Band. The band was formed in 1997 with a small combination of Mary Washington College students and members of the Fredericksburg community. It has grown steadily each year, adding pipers, drummers, and dancers.

Of special interest, and great pride, the Eagle Pipe Band was founded by, and is under the direction of, Dr. Raymond B. Scott, Professor of Chemistry at Mary Washington College. Performers at today's ceremony include students at Mary Washington College as well as members of the greater Fredericksburg community. The tartan worn by the performers was designed by the College to match the school colors, and is registered in Scotland's official registry of tartans.

This year the Eagle Pipe Band is joined by members of the Mary Washington College Brass Ensemble and additional community brass players. The brass ensemble has played with the Eagle Pipe Band at several venues over the last two years, most notably at the Potomac Celtic Festival and the Virginia State Fair.

ALMA MATER

All hail, dear Alma Mater,
We sing our praise to you.
High on Marye's Hilltop
You stand forever true;
Born in truth and honor
You ever more shall be,
The model of our future years
And all eternity.

Whene'er we have to leave you
We never will forget,
The lessons you have taught us,
And all the friends we've met;
And we your sons and daughters
Will hold your name on high,
So here's to Mary Washington;
Our love will never die.
